Approach

At Blue Fire Leadership, we believe that successful and innovative teams require safe, inclusive, and respectful environments that are human-centric by design and in practice. When it comes to sensitivity training, it is essential to create experiences that honor the complexities of this topic. We start by closing the doors and creating room for exploration and immersive learning.

Each module engages deep listening, imagination, and compassion of oneself and others. With facilitators who have specific expertise in group dynamics in this arena, Respecting Lines helps identify opportunities that exist within our clients' specific workplace cultures where awareness, understanding and adoption will lead to a more inclusive, productive, and exemplary community.
